

Immigration

Icard Merrill's Immigration Law practice provides legal services in immigration and U.S. consular service related to all types of immigration status and visa matters. We guide clients through the planning and application process to obtain visas and the steps necessary to change or maintain immigration status. We offer our clients both technical legal advice and practical solutions for effective planning, and we stay abreast of the changes in immigration rules and policy that affect our clients' lives. Our team includes support staff and paralegals fluent in several languages other than English. We are an integrated component of a full service law firm, which allows our clients to benefit from the talents of other lawyers within the firm skilled in matters that often affect our immigration clients, particularly tax, business, estate planning, land use and real estate law.
