

Real Estate

Our firm's long-standing history and reputation in real property matters gives our clients a decided edge in negotiating, purchasing, developing and using real property to its highest potential. Our real estate lawyers consult with other practice groups within the firm to coordinate the relevant tax, corporate, land use, estate planning and personal objectives of our clients. This results in a comprehensive development, purchase, or use plan designed to meet the specific needs of each client. We recognize that each client has a specific goal, and often a life-long dream, for their property, and we understand that we are often a vital component in helping to realize that goal.

Condominiums/Subdivision Documentation

We assist in creating and operating condominiums and subdivisions for residential, commercial and mixed-use developments. We prepare declarations of condominium: covenants, conditions and restrictions for home owner and commercial associations; and all other required governing documents, including deed restrictions and prospectuses for condominium associations and homeowners associations.

Land Development

Our attorneys represent clients in developing residential and commercial real estate projects from conception to completion, from due diligence and contract negotiation through entity formation, project finance, construction, condominium and association document approval, sale of the units and turnover of the homeowner's or condominium association. Whether the project is a "greenfield" development on raw land or a complex redevelopment effort, Icard Merrill attorneys have the broad experience in many different facets of real estate and development law that gives our clients an advantage in complex development projects and transactions.

Landlord and Tenant

We provide a broad range of services to landlords and tenants and are experienced in all areas of lease transactions, including negotiation, preparation, and due diligence for gross and triple net leases in residential and commercial communities/developments. We also handle eviction proceedings and have experience in dealing with the defaults of either party under current leases.
